Please write a short description about yourself and motivate why you would like to attend the event
I have been working in the web application development sector for more than nine years. Until now, most of my work was remote. Currently, I am seeking a front-end developer position in Sweden as I have been living in Sweden from Last August. I want to attend this event because I will be able to learn what type of skills needed to get a job in a leading organization like Volvo. Apart from that, this will give me a chance to meet with the industry leader in the web development field so that I will get ideas of current trends in the tech industry. Finally, If I can see some of their work and do networking with them, it will help me to set my future maneuver regarding learning and getting the job.

Yes, I would like to join you on the following event
